

Little Triggers

Little Triggers are a young rock n roll band from Liverpool. With the line-up finalised in late 2017, the band rehearsed manically through early 2018 before embarking on a Spring tour. This culminated in a magical night at a festival in France with 3,000 fans going berserk, mass stage invasions and young girls and guys becoming impromptu backing dancers. The band were invited back to France for four gigs in August that year, returning to enter the recording studio to lay down their debut album. An end of year highlight was stealing the show from a Doors tribute band at a sold out O2 Academy gig in Liverpool.

2019 has seen another 8 gig French tour, including playing to a 4,000 crowd at Le Voix du Rock festival near Poitiers and storming a festival in Suffolk, who's organisers labelled Little Triggers "band of the weekend."

The debut album was released in May 2019, with the first single, So Fine, played five weeks in a row on Planet Rock Radio. The band were given a rave review in a Classic Rock magazine 'High Hopes' feature and the end of the year see's So Fine featured as one of Classic Rock magazine's 'Tracks of 2019'.

Little Triggers are a formidable live force and the line-up now features Tom Hamilton on guitar and lead vocals with Jay Radcliffe on drums and backing vocals. Tom plays his guitar through three amps with one signal being lowered by an octave and fed through a bass amp, a clean signal played through a second amp providing rhythm and a third amp receiving the lead signal with accompanying effects. A tour is planned for early 2020 around the release of a new single on 13 February.
